

Dwelling Unit Determination

A dwelling unit can be a building or part of a building, including a single-family home, a unit within a multifamily building, an apartment, a condominium, or other similar property or structure. Answer the following questions to determine if the parcel contains one or more dwelling units that should be on the Grand List.

If there are multiple units, answer the following questions for each unit.

Is any part of the building designed to be occupied by people, meaning it has space for sleeping, cooking, and sanitary waste disposal?

Does the living space have its own separate entrance?

Is this unit fit for year-round habitation? How to tell:

- Does the unit have a year-round heating system?
- Is there running water inside the unit that is usable year round?
- Is there plumbing, septic, or another wastewater system that can operate year round and is sufficient for a unit of this size?
- Is the unit reasonably accessible year round by people and motor vehicles?

If you answered YES to ALL of these questions:

If you answered NO to ANY of these questions:
